I'm still somewhat concerned with Comment 3 about no formal documentation of the possible ordinance in the area (if I'm understanding this right). 68 contact were identified during the RRR (yes I realize it could be anything) and the recommendation of the IAS was that real estate records be annotated, correct?

What happens if the Navy BRAC's this off in the future and new docks are constructed? Any type of intrusive activity such as installing piling etc... would put workers at potential risk of detonating something that may be buried in sediment. This would probably come back to being the responsibility of the Navy and I don't think it would look very good if there is a document on file suggesting this be done that was never followed up on. Yes I realize there are probably no plans to turn the property over now, but I believe that if we don't do it sometime during the UXO-1 process it will be forgotten.

I also don't think that this is something that necessarily needs to be dealt with in this document, but maybe done as a recommendation of the SI???

Let me know your thoughts when you get the opportunity,
